IYPT.org Jury Planner is a handy and easy to use application built in Java that enables you to generate a schedule for the International Young Physicists' Tournament. The database for this application provides information such as name and bio of student teams from all the colleges (institutes) of University P.I.E.T.E.S.E in the country of Egypt. The database contains a search option to search for name of college or a student with a given surname. It also provides an option to search for a student in the database. It contains a function to add student name to the database. The database can be edited through the World Wide Web using a browser or through a mobile application such as IOS and Android. It also contains an option to edit or add a new name in the database. The application interface was developed in the company PORTBASE, an independent software development company with experience in projects related to school projects and projects for special needs. Research shows that a new generation of young people are far more liberal than their elders. But they are the most traditional of all, according to new studies. This is a generation of young liberals, but they are less liberal than their parents. And they share one common characteristic, youth, with conservative, old people. "The young conservatives are quite the opposite to the old ones," says Jie Chen of the University of Chinese Academy of Sciences. There are numerous cultural, social and psychological explanations. A new book by Chen and his team digs deep into the subject. The younger generation is more innovative, open to difference and interested in broader horizons. 'Young people feel that values have more depth and can be defined more precisely' Read more But also, young people are more open to rational arguments – they have "a kind of willingness to explore different viewpoints, even those that seem to be irrational". They have less loyalty to their own generation – which is more traditional and less open to change. "They feel that values have more depth and can be defined more precisely," says Chen. And there is also a big difference between young women and young men. Gender differences are key to the story. Old people support more state intervention in the economy, while younger people are very much in favour of free markets and individual liberty. "And we know that feminists are more conservative," says Chen. And older people
