Each model is an object and you can access the session data by calling: $this->session->data; Q: Does the sense of those in inversion change? For example in 'hem' vs 'am', which have a strong sense of the word falling apart. The inversion of 'am' makes it more emphatic, but for some reason the converse in 'hem' is not as strong. I have found similar with 'hen' and 'hen' vs 'hen' - 'hen' has a double emphasis on the first part while 'hen' clearly emphasizes the 2nd part. A: Yes, inversion does change the sense. English inversion can be used to shift the focus of a sentence, so that the subject and verb are no longer located at the same level. This can change the meaning of the sentence. As a simple example, consider this pair of sentences: A. He took the car. He took the car. B. He took the car. The car he took. In (A), the verb is in a subordinate clause that is in second position. In (B), the subordinate clause is in first position. So, what happens when you invert the sentence? In (A), the subject and verb are reversed. This doesn't affect the subject, since it is still being talked about, but it does imply that he is taking it. You can hardly call this the focus of the sentence, but it's different. In 3e33713323
