My mozilla address bar is appearing in Red, for some reason. But the rest of the page is fine. This is the link where it's showing the address bar in red: This is my link in css: h1.title { color: #7ad4d8; } How do I fix this? A: Is it for the text of the title? If so it's because it has a CSS border around it. Remove the border and the text is normal. This is the relevant part of the CSS from a.title element: h1.title { background: #fff url(images/title-background.png) left top repeat-x; border: 2px solid #7ad4d8; } If you want to remove the border and display the text with no background image, then you'll need to use display:inline-block in the.title element and make sure there is no padding on the element. The text can be smaller to fill the space since it's not part of the background image. I have a whopping 4 days off work this week as my beloved partner Joe has decided to take over my 9-5 3da54e8ca3
