It's only just past the first of December now, and all of a sudden the weather's getting cold. Christmas is creeping up, and as it does so the carols get a little more cheerful, hopefully not too melancholy! We've got three new pairs of Christmas socks on the go, and I'm just in the process of working out what to pair them with for this year. I probably won't go to the trouble of doing a proper outfit for Christmas, but in-between my attempt to decorate the apartment beautifully with my own handwork, I'm going to be working through a full set of my christmassy socks for the last time. 1. Basic Setting The game has now ended, the Children of Light as well as the Children of Corruption have defeated one another and the Lands Between are recovering from the devastation of the war. So let us go back in time to the day of our beginning, when the great war was just beginning to rage. Tarnished, leader of the Children of Corruption, had led her forces to the Lands Between and given birth to a dark new world. Her first act was to form alliances with the demons of Gaster and the Shadowlords. The fractured Elden Ring was the only thing standing in her way. 2. The Land of Elden The Lands Between is one of the largest countries surrounding Elden, and once formed its own nation before being plagued by civil war. There are a number of battlefields scattered throughout the country. Every area and every encounter is different, and using your strategic skills to choose the right type of combat is the key to victory. The towns, which are generally located far from the battlefields, provide the means to outfit your character, as well as to undergo training. When your strength reaches certain levels, you will be able to change areas for training. 3. Character Your starting character is Tarnished, a member of the Children of Corruption. Battle System Mixed battle system. In battle, you will use your main weapon to fight and your magic to support your allies. There are also skills, actions, items, and arts that you can use.
