Patch recover my files.HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania House of Representatives has approved a bill to shield the names of doctors who perform abortions from being revealed by the state. The House voted 40-20 on Thursday to approve the bill, which had previously cleared the Senate. Both chambers now must decide whether to send the bill to the governor for his signature. Republican state Rep. Anthony Hardy Williams says Pennsylvania has a reputation for being open and up-to-date about medical information. But he says the bill is needed to maintain that reputation, while ensuring the health and safety of patients undergoing abortions. The bill would direct the state Department of Health to replace the names of medical professionals who provide abortions with the initials. The GOP-controlled Senate approved the bill in March, after the House amended it. FILED NOT FOR PUBLICATION
