To bring life to HyperMotion Technology, the game uses the same animation system as FIFA 19, but with an added motion capturing rig. The rig is the same size as the player animations in FIFA 19, which allowed the technology to be placed directly on top of the player's body. With the HyperMotion technology, players can feel the weight of each move, mimicking high-intensity, full-speed physical play. The mechanics of a game are critical to simulation, especially in the context of realistic simulation. With the introduction of "HyperMotion" technology, FIFA 22 players will feel the weight of each move made, better replicating the way players feel during a match. At this time, we're still in the early stages of development, however the goal for player character animation is to replicate real-life movement while being easy to animate, which is why the animation system in FIFA 22 is so fluid. The team is focused on delivering the best possible player reaction and animation models, as well as the ability to implement motion capture data from real-life player movement, which is an undertaking that we took into account when creating this technology. Where the cameras are placed on the player depends on the position of the players. The cameras, for instance, will collect data from real-life player movements to be used for this version of FIFA. However, we will continue to refine the design of the rigs throughout development so that we can make use of more cameras and sensors than in FIFA 19, as well as collect data from more of the real-life player movements in the process. We plan to release further video, showing how this technology impacts the experience of playing the game, very soon. If you're a FIFA fan, we suggest the new November Patch Notes (ESRB: M) on the Xbox One and PC versions of the game and we're also planning to roll out the Windows 10 Fall Creators Update on Xbox One later this year. While the newest "HyperMotion" technology was added to FIFA 22, there will also be updates to the game's physics engine to reflect the new animation and physics models, as well as other gameplay elements such as dribbling, the new Player Impact Engine, enhanced player collisions, more ball control options and enhanced shooting mechanics. We have also completely overhauled the broadcast presentation and broadcasting models to make them more immersive and exciting for fans around the world. The team

Welcome to the world's most famous football videogame franchise. With more than 50 million players all over the world, FIFA is one of the most popular videogame series of all time. As the official videogame of FIFA, EA SPORTS FIFA aims to build on its legacy of innovation with fundamental gameplay advances and a new season of innovation across every mode. While the gameplay in FIFA may appear similar to that of other sports videogames, the innovations that EA SPORTS has implemented into the game have made FIFA a first-of-its-kind videogame series. Now EA SPORTS FIFA is making history once again. For the first time ever, FIFA is bringing the world of FIFA to the console game experience. FIFA 22 on PlayStation®4 brings together all the features of the world's best football videogame franchise on the new console, with a new single-player career mode and innovations for the most popular modes including Create a Club, My Club, and Ultimate Team. Single-player Career In FIFA 22 for PlayStation®4, for the first time ever, you'll be able to compete against 32 of the world's best professional players in FIFA 22 Ultimate Team, alongside unparalleled gameplay mechanics and pitch control enhancements, and pioneering new interaction features such as FIFA Interaction Protocol (FIP) and Player Impact Engine (PIE). Pitch Control FIFA 22 delivers on the pitch experience and attention to detail gamers have come to expect from the EA SPORTS series. With improved pitch control, you'll be able to make faster and more accurate shots, dribble through your opponents and play the ball better. Technological Improvements FIFA 22 builds on the evolution of gameplay and technology that's already been a hallmark of the EA SPORTS FIFA series with the introduction of FIP, PIE and other FIFA 22 innovations, as well as the advancement of hardware capabilities. Pitch Control is the one of biggest improvements to this game, using the new Player Impact Engine (PIE) – allowing for more control on the pitch. PIE is a technology that improves the game mechanics using physical representations of players. FIFA Interaction Protocol (FIP) is a technology that improves the game with player behavior specific to what you do on the pitch. FIP uses the PIE technology to improve awareness of the ball and player on the pitch with assistance and suggestions so you can play better in the game. “
