City: Skylines is going to give you all.Characterization of the pectin-degrading bacterium Pantoea agglomerans from the non-legume plant Quercus petraea. The possible role of Pantoea agglomerans as a root pathogen of Quercus petraea was studied. Seeding of the rhizosphere and the roots of Q. petraea growing in pots with a constant microbial community, the bacterial population present in the roots was isolated. Ten isolates of P. agglomerans, which exhibited the highest range of hydrolytic activity, were characterized. Of these isolates, five could degrade the pectin fraction of the plant cell wall. The pectate lyase activity (EC 4.2.2.2) produced by the five bacterial strains was characterized. A pectin lyase with a molecular mass of approximately 50 kDa was purified and characterized as pectate lyase (PLase). The PLase gene of P. agglomerans was cloned and sequence of the cloned gene showed a high identity to the sequence of P. agglomerans 3144 reported as a strain isolated from aquatic habitats. The amino acid sequence of P. agglomerans were isolated from the roots of Q. petraea and their metabolism was not influenced by the application of a p 648931e174
