A brutal, addictive shooting game set in a grim future ravaged by the Ubersreik. The whole world is dying, killed by the heat and poisonous fumes of the Rusted Moss. Survivors choose from one of the 3 playable races; be it the forsaken technologically superior humans, the lone surviving humans, or the barbaric creatures of the land. All 3 play similarly: The goal is to fly as fast as possible and shoot objects until they are destroyed, ideally without crashing. Only then will you gain power-ups for your weapons. Build faster rockets, stronger guns and armor, explosives, shields and more – use the power of all 3 races to kill the other. The war of destruction begins. Who will win? One gameplay mode, 3 playable characters and a deadly soundtrack. Playable Races: Humans: The human-dominated second race of the Warhammer 40,000 universe. They are ancient and advanced. While they live in castles, huge garrisons and mighty fortresses they use guns, mechs and drones to dominate the battlefield. Khazra: From the cold, dark depths of the northern wastes come the terror of the Beholder. The Khazra are tall, imposing brute creatures who come in all shapes and sizes. The Khazra carry no weapons save their large beaks and large, toothy claws. The beak can be used for melee attacks and the claws for ranged attacks. The Khazra also have a unique skill, which they use to harness the abilities of their foes, and it's this ability that will determine their future in the struggle for this crumbling land. Gust: The human-dominated third race of the Warhammer 40,000 universe. The Gust are a gigantic and resilient race with their own impressive, yet mysterious, technology and some of the tallest buildings in Gladius. The three races of Gladius are easy to control since they have their own unique and intuitive controls. Just aim, shoot and watch all the blood and guts of the battlefield fly out. Development Team: After 5 years of development, Rusted Moss is finally here, after an long and intensive journey through design, testing, development and optimization. For a complete list of the developers and their skills you can view the credits on the Screenshot. Known Bugs and issues: -The lore text is missing atm. What's new:

of the Mind Empires of the Mind is an original 13-part documentary series that features one of the most secretly edited and censored nations of the world: North Korea. President Kim Jong-un and the military-first administration that he leads have dedicated themselves to becoming “the only powerful and an invincible military force on the Korean Peninsula and in the region by the end of the 21st century” by holding the U.S. and Japan “hostage” and punishing [the U.S. and Japan] with unimaginable force. (Kim Jong-il’s vicious purge of Kim Jong-un’s uncle Jang Jun-gun and the fact that Kim Jong-un’s father was executed by firing squad in December 2013 gives us some idea of what is to come, and why) Shortly after Nixon left the White House in January 1973, he had no idea of what was to occur at Camp David that summer. What by then was only a cold war crisis was about to escalate into Watergate, so Nixon was cautious when he suggested to Kissinger that they all meet with the foreign leaders at Camp David. He specifically stated, “Don’t go anywhere else unless you have to, because if you do, that will shorten the meeting, and we can’t afford to shorten it.” Kissinger probably did not pay much attention to his boss, but Nixon could not sleep the night before the Camp David meeting. He had surveillance bugs placed everywhere and eventually obtained over 5,000 hours of conversations that were controlled by the FBI. Those tapes were all edited down during the Watergate investigations and all but 14 hours were destroyed, including some that related to Nixon’s and Kissinger’s meetings at Camp David. Kissinger has often cited his 13 days in the Lakeside bungalow of Camp David to explain the opening of the two wider conflicts with China and Russia. He wrote that [it] was in the context of Watergate, which ended on August 9, that we decided to clear the decks of our negotiations with the USSR and to open it up with China, thus clearing the decks and freeing us to focus on Nixon’s visit to Peking. Kissinger’s remarks are interesting. The suggestion that the multi-layer nuclear environment that surrounded the Soviet Union in 1973 was of independent risk didn’t come until two years later when the Soviets agreed to a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. It is

Level Design: The level design process began by defining a few key points about the campaign that would affect the work required to make the most of the terrain and location, as well as the types of encounters we expected players and Game Masters to be interested in, and the types of characters the Game Masters would be likely to like and play in our game. This helped us set up a framework within which the rest of the level design could take place, so the final design was the result of collaboration among level design, art, narrative, and campaign management.

Superheroes Training Exercise: Because the Classic Sci-Fi Battlegrounds were not designed with Starfinder in mind, we had to modify the existing terrain to create
