Frosty Kiss is a paper and dice game. In Frosty Kiss you roll a die, make as many paper and add as many dice as you like. You slide the group of papers forward one at a time. The first piece that touches the coin falls away and you are set to roll again. It is not a race, just your luck. The person with the least paper and dice loses first. When you land on a space, you add it to your color. When you place a group of paper and dice on top of the opposing color, the group stays. The player of the opposing color is out of turn. You now have to discard all the dice from the previous turn, or discard the paper. You are now set to add as many dice and paper as you like for the next turn. But beware, every turn you can lose one of your pieces. If you lose all of your pieces, your opponent wins! The game starts with one color. Jotun: Original Soundtrack is an action-adventure game developed by the Finnish studio Carbon Games and published by Nordic Games. The game was released on 15 December 2011 for Microsoft Windows and in November 2012 for Xbox 360.

The Swiss team broke the distance record in the team time trial on Saturday by a minute and 53 seconds, with 13 teams competing for overall victory. But the French men's team might have to wait until Sunday to capture its first gold medal in a world championships since 2004. The French team will also have to wait for a result in the men's individual time trial, as the road race leaders Chris Froome and Romain Bardet slipped off the front in a crash midway through the race. Froome, who was third at the time, now leads by over a minute and Bardet is right behind him in fourth. Switzerland, led by Fabian Cancellara, and the United States, with World Cup teammate Andrew Talansky in third, also claimed overall victories on Saturday, while Britain's Laura Trott won the women's individual time trial in a time nearly 12 seconds faster than the fastest previous woman's time. Other winners included Australia in the team pursuit, Team GB in the women's team time trial, Colombia in the men's team time trial and Spain in the men's individual time trial.

Q: Javascript: Comparing an array of arrays to another array of arrays I am trying to solve this problem in Javascript. Given a set of arrays of integers, suppose a_1, \dots, a_n , are the arrays and n is the number of arrays. Find all the arrays in a_1, \dots, a_n which are a subset of a given array b of integers, i.e., $a_1, \dots, a_n \in b$. In the following example $a = [[1,2,3,4], [5,6,7], [8,9,0,1,2,3]]$ $b = [4,0,3]$ I should return $[[5,6,7], [8,9,0,1,2,3]]$

with lots of Flexibility Now that I found Fleximint, their not ready. Their format is so polished that its hard to get it to trade with us. So sorry to Cape, but what I've had for 4 months just doesn't cut it. They didn't even get 24 hour volume right. If anyone has tried Cape lately they will tell you that its not for them, its not as polished as Flash and you have to set it up for volume and for the right loads. Ramhound 08-11-2007, 12:55 PM OMG the blast board i seen was WAYY WAY WAY MORE COOL than Cape. Camille 08-12-2007, 11:11 AM haha im the one who posted this in the first place, i just didnt think of posting the link again. Sweet style, this could be my new boy. Dukanabie 08-13-2007, 05:52 PM Wow, this thread seems to be filled with too many Cape users. Not that its a bad thing, but that Cape works great and doesn't have a ton of bad points. I have had my Fusion and Cape for 3 months now. The facts of the matter is, working with Talon 95, you pretty much have to stick to their trading system. I am very satisfied with the way it works. But they just haven't fixed some of the minor bugs, and it really has very little use if the broker refuses to work with you in a timely manner. It does have'some' really nice features, like a very nice loading screen that is flash and it displays the current instrument. You can set 'hide' or'show' most of the system buttons, which is cool. The Interface is, pretty much, just another pup I have tried. But you can fiddle around and set it how you want it to look. It's not a professional tool, but it does help and is easy to use. Cape has come a long ways and, in my opinion is a pretty solid trading platform in a package. A few people have reported bad experiences with it. Funny thing is, Cape has promised better support, etc for a long time. In the end, it's your choice. BlackBows 08-14-2007, 09:47 PM To each his own, buddy
