My question is this: Let's say I have a table called employees, with 6 rows. +----+-----+ | id | name | +----+-----+ | 1 | Bob | | 2 | Mark | | 3 | Jackie | | 4 | N/A | | 5 | N/A | | 6 | N/A | +----+-----+ Now, I have another table called departments, where I only have 3 rows. +----+-----+ | id | name | +----+-----+ | 1 | Marketing | | 2 | Sales | | 3 | Engineering | +----+-----+ I need to make a query where I can get the name of an employee with ID 1 that is in the department that has the name Marketing. One way I know how to do this is a sub query: SELECT * FROM employees WHERE id IN (SELECT DISTINCT id FROM employees WHERE name IN ('Marketing')) ) But, my bigger query has a different order. It will use a join to get the employee ID and then join the departments table that has the same ID. The bigger query is: SELECT e.id, e.name, de.id, de.name FROM employees e, departments de WHERE e.id = de.id

The resulting table should look something like: +----+-----+

CUSTOM (TS-A+K) - Uptimized ($15.00) Hi there. My name is Devon and I am the author of this thread! I'm a huge anime fan and life-long collector and I enjoy both trading and scanning. About Us TinBits is an online community site where the residents of the Denton neighborhood of Dallas, Texas can talk about what's going on in their lives. The season is winding down and we are already well on our way to the end of the year. I guess that means it is time for some interviews, and we start off with the one and only Salty Patty! You can check out her interview here, and if you want to follow her or see more of her artwork, she has all of her work linked here in her portfolio. Thank you to those who voted for her on my poll, and in true style, she absolutely crushed it. Yes you read that correctly, she beat out all of the artists I asked to vote on so I can make the announcement. As many of you may know, I cannot pick favorites and ended up having to choose one of the top three. At the same time I am very thankful to both of you who helped Salty Patty get this far. She actually had a link to her site listed in some of my email, but I am starting to realize that linking to your blog/site for the first time is not the easiest thing to do. I do believe that makes this the first interview that I have ever done that actually has a functional link to the interviewee's blog. I will try to do better next time! Thank you again to all who participated and to all who voted for Salty Patty. You can see all of the other winners of the poll here. Thank you for all of your support and I hope you continue to support me in my endeavors. Now, enough small talk, check out Salty Patty and get to know her better as we continue down the road of this journey we are on...Spectral Reflectance Measurements of Porphyry and eclogitic Complexes in the Soudan Supergroup.
