screen. If you don't see the tool on the left side, click the pop-up menu at the top of the screen to reveal the options.) Or you can use the Eraser tool by selecting the Eraser tool and pressing Alt

Q: Can't seem to get mocha to bootstrap in with PhantomJS I'm running into an odd error trying to get mocha to bootstrap in PhantomJS using a "test-runner" I am using. The error I am seeing is about.Setup() taking too long and the script dies. Below is the error message:

> Error: Can't find the mocha'setup' function in the package'mocha' at Error (native) I downloaded the mocha package as described in this answer:

From the repository, I also downloaded the test-runner using bower and installed it using npm. Here are my steps:

/html/cli/bower_components> npm install mocha /html/cli/bower_components> npm install phantom-mocha /html/cli/bower_components> node -v

v9.4.0 /html/cli/bower_components> mocha --require phantom-mocha --grep test -u. -d tests/Browser/headless --recursive ERROR: Can't find the mocha'setup' function in the package'mocha' at Error (native) /html/cli/bower_components> npm install

node-gyp /html/cli/bower_c omponents> gulp /html/cli/
bower_components>

Thanks for your help. A: In my case I solved this by creating a PhantomJS binary from the source and installing it instead of using the web version. This GitHub issue seems to describe the same problem.

Update When creating a binary with phantom-binary, you must specify a version that corresponds to a specific PhantomJS version. For instance:

phantom-binary \ -v 1.8.1 \
--target=1.8.1 \ --builddir=test-build \ --build-exe=windows \
--browsers=chrome,firefox \

--reuse-port=9999 \ --user-agent=Mozilla/5.0 \ --no-automatic-popen \
