Captain Tsubasa: Rise of New Champions is a 3D soccer simulation in which each of the 31 clubs from Japan's J League compete in the role of their historical team. The goal is to play out your club's unique story as a team and the ultimate goal is to rise up the national rankings by dominating your conference. When Japan's top ten divisions are renamed into League A, B, and C, the J. League has been renamed to the Japan Soccer League (JSL) and is divided into 3 conferences (West, Central, and East). The 3rd and 4th tier professional leagues of Japan are renamed into Division 1 and 2. An array of new third and fourth tier soccer clubs emerge with the goal to win promotion to the JSL. Captain Tsubasa: Rise of New Champions is one of the first sports games which feature the "simulation in real time" method. This means that players can be controlled in the game but they're actually controlled by a real soccer player. So they could act as if they're playing on the official Japan Soccer League field but in reality it will be the field of the JSL. In addition to actually competing as a team, players can also play multiple games at a time in the form of Versus and Online Versus matches. Fans can also interact with the teams via online message board, club news, player information, and more.
